ICS 3112   Legal and Ethical Aspects of Computing

Focus on issues that involve computer impact on society and related concerns. Transitional data flow; copyright protection; Information as a source of economic power; rights to access computer systems; computer crime; data privacy; establishing national priorities in the technical and social aspects of computing; current and anticipated uses of computer prediction; and protection of personal ethical concerns. National Computer policies of Japan, France, Great Britain, USA and the European Economic Community. The status of the regulation and emerging markets.